Kintaikyo Bridge 錦帯橋

(registered as one of Japan's greatest bridges)

Kintaikyo Bridge is one of the most famous wooden bridges in the world built in 1673 by the feudal lord, Hiroyoshi Kikkawa, during the Edo period. The bridge is made of five consecutive arches in order to be resistant to floods. The smoothly curved wooden arches are highly regarded as one of the most sophisticated and original pieces of modern bridge engineering. The present bridge was reconstructed in 1953 using traditional methods and techniques. Kintaikyo Bridge is one of Japan's most valued treasures. Visitors enjoy with beautiful surrounding nature, seasonal flowers and trees as well as the view of the traditional castle town

6 Kikko Unosato- Cormorant Training Facility MAP:P4

Take a close look at the cormorants that are actually used in the Cormorant Fishing at the Kintaikyo Bridge!

The classic summer scene in Iwakuni is the traditional "Cormorant Fishing at the Kintaikyo Bridge". This facility raises cormorants for fishing and you can watch the cormorants up close through wire nets. In addition to the Training Space, where you can watch the cormorants train and feed, there is also an Exhibition Space, where you can learn about the history of cormorant fishing across Japan, through videos and panel exhibits. With free WiFi and a baby feeding room, the Exhibition Space can also be used as a place to take a short break.

Cormorant fishing is an ancient method of catching ayu (sweetfish), which live in clear river waters. "Cormorant fishing at Kintaikyo Bridge" is said to have been carried out beside Kintaikyo Bridge in the Edo period (1609-1868). At present, the tradition is conducted every year from June 1 to September 10, for the purpose of cultural preservation and tourism.
